Campaign Song Air-"Tippeennoe,"

BY G. W. A.

Come, all ye brave men of the union, And all ye republicans true. Give a shout for our Garfield and Arthur, The men that will carry us through.

First Choats.
For Garfield and Arthur, too,
For Garfield and Arthur, too;
Hurrah for the republican party—
For Garfield and Arthur, too;

Let us band together as brothers Against the democrat for: With shoulder to shoulder united, Until their complete overthrow,

Priest Chorus,
Our party is the party of freedom,
And has saved the country from woe;
Has led her to honor and glory
Against our old democrat foe,

SECOND CHORUS, Against the old democrat foe, Against the old democrat foe, Come vote for Garfield and Arthur Against the old democrat foe. Shall they reap all the fruits of our struggle on of all that's begin do Shall they triumph now over our party And victories loyally won?

Second chorus-Against, etc. Now, comrades, remember your duty→ How you struggled one country to save; Once mare lift the republican banner, And long to the breeze ist her wave. Second chorus-Against, etc.

Garfield is a man of the people: Has been tried and found noble and true; On the tow-path he began life's hard labor, And now we shall see him go through. Second chorus-Against, etc.

To the nation's first place we'll elect him; Our votes to him cheerfully give: He : _ _ man that ne'er falters in duty— He : _ _ _ man three chees__ _ man he live. Then three cheers,

Mountain Climbing in Colorado-Above All Creation-250,000 Square Miles in Sight. [Special Correspondence of THE NATIONAL RE-PUBLICAN.]

GEORGETOWN, COL., Aug. 4, 1880.
Washington has been called "a city of magnificent distances," but what shall be said of nificent distances," but what shall be said of this great western country where people think almost nothing of a trip of a couple of thousand miles? The trains both ways over the Union Pacific railway go crowded not merely by business men and immigrants, but pleasure-seekers, going or returning from the Catskills, Saratoga and former eastern homes. I have been struck with the apparent insignificance to these western folks of a journey of a couple of thousand miles. And the distances are magnificent in more ways than one. Over the vast prairies after leaving Omaha the eye searches often in vain for something to over the vast prairies after leaving Omaha the eye searches often in vain for something to break the view. Part of the way is over, what to all eastern person appears a sterile, repulsive wilderness for hundreds of miles of alkill plains. But the large herds feeding upon the sparsely scattered "buffalo grass" silently contradict appearances. Since my last I have seen so much and in such a rapid way, almost without a rest, that I hardly know how, in a short letter, to give any description of my trip. But the sneaking any description of my trip. But the speaking of distances has suggested that I describe just one little opisode of my trip, during which I was able to look out over the magnificent space of 250,000 square miles—so the guide-book says. If I had time I should like to describe to you have results. scribe to you Denver, with its twenty-five churches, water works, banks, hotels (one costing nearly $300,000), railroads, elegant residences and a forest of trees, its beautiful streets, etc., all built within ten years on on alkali desert. I would like to describe my tring through Classococchies. trip through Clear-creek canon and the they attempt mining camps (so-called) of Georgetown and Central City and Black Hawk, the mines I a few hairs. have visited and entered, and the reducing works and many other interesting experiences and objects. But I will only try to describe, in a hurried way, a trip to the top of the famous Gray's peak, the fourth peak in height in the state, and called the "Dome of the Continent." Is is given miss form. the Continent." Is is fifteen miles from Georgetown and three and one-third miles hove the level of the streets of Washington. Two Philadelphians and your correspondent started on bronco horses from Georgetown about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon through a most romantic, wild gorge, with mountains towering on either side, the road in places making steep ascents, the Clear creek at our feet making beautiful falls and curves and th air every moment as we seemed becoming perceptibly lighter until we reached "high timber line," where the trees suddonly coased to grow. perceptibly lighter until we reached "high timber line," where the trees suddouly ceased to grow. This was about twelve miles from Goorgetown, and we found nestling betwire these glaut, frowning, barren mountain-tops the cabin, "Kelso's," where we were to spend at least part of the night. It is a log house, not very inviting in external appearances, but when, upon entering, we found a roomy house furnished confortably and decorated, evidently by fair fingers, with those little frifles which ladies seem intuitively to gather about them, with a warm fire and a good supper, we felt at home at once.

At 10 elocks next morning we were aroused to prepare for the ascent of the great dome. After taking a cup of hot coffice we mounted our steeds, and, with a guide ahead with a lamtern to show us the way, we started in Indian file for a three-mile ride up the trail. The guide, by the way, was a hearty, resy-cheeked young man who had come here from the cast only ten weeks ago, as his friends supposed, in the last stages of consumption, with a cough which emaciated and nearly killed him. He now can climb mountains, and says he can never getenough to eat, and he looks well.

The trail at first was not difficult, but soon we saw that we had before us a frightfully steep mountain side to climb, and the path began to zigzag up this stope, turning sharp corners, when the horses almost scemed to stop; to balance themselves. If you can imagine a pathway about two feet wide made of loose stones and earth, up in a Z shape, along a steep roof, you will have a very good des of our ride. Beneath us we could see a flm, vague guif, and above us a towering height that all our climbing did not seem to reduce. But a steep the course of its lower of its liver and with the assertment that it does this, you can make you can when the heaty and the path with the safernoon. gulf, and above us a towering height that all our climbing did not seem to reduce. But at last, just as the candle in the lantern was ex-hausted, we could in the gray dawn see the little stone but above us, which was built on top for shelter from the cold winds always blowing at this altitude. Warmly clad as we were, the strong wind was ley cold and pierc-ing and the surface under our feet covered

We had not long to await the appearance of the "god of day." The clouds and morning yanors which had hung gloomily over the eastern mountain tops began to put on their "garments of praise," and with his way strewn with golden deece, and shooting up most gorgeous rays of light, he came. We instinctively took off our lats and stood in rapt wonder and admiration, appreciating as never before the grandeur of those words, "Let there be light!" In an instant the brilliancy of the sun, even before he was fully risen from his golden couch, was so great that we could not look upon his splender, and we turned our eyes over toward the west, where out of the gloom of twilight there appeared in tapld succession peak after peak, each in its turn made to smile.

Now for our climb down the mountain. Our trusty howes seemed to appreciate the giddy beight to which they had brought us, for with cautious step, and slowly, they began to descend. We could now in the full light of day realize the danger of the ascent, and as we looked down into the ravine thousands of feet below, and knew that a mistep of the horse would plunge us hopelessly over, wewere willing to let them take their own gait and simply hold last.

Lynching at the South. Eyaching at the South.

"The lynching of negroes for shameful assaults upon women is becoming of too common occurrence in the south for any single case to startle the public, but it is nevertheless utterly inexcusable. The only plea in palliation is that the legal courts are either corrupt or afraid to act. Of course this pleautterly falls in cases of outrage, for juries may always be depended upon to convict if the evidence is sufficient."

be depended upon to convict if the evidence is sufficient."

We ellip the above from the New York Herald of July 28. It is good as far as it goes, but the writer did not apprehend the deeper philosophy involved in these cases. The truth is that men thus Iyuched are seldem guilty of the crimes alleged against them. Where there is an appearance of guilt it is easy to convict and ranish, but the most innocent may be murdered under such charges with impunity, and politicians or others find this the safest method of disposing of those who are in their way. Lynching colored men for alleged crime is the safest method of systematic murder now practiced in the south. It may be set down as a rule that four out of five if not nine out of tanj thus killed are innocent of the crimes charged against them, and they are simply butchered to get them out of the way for some other reason. In many cases they are important witnesses against white men. [Atlanta (Ga.) Methodiat Advocate. Advocate.

A New View of the Cousus.

The following note to the Alexandria Gazette from somebody in Hanover county reads as follows: "The cousus has been taken, elections have been held, the issues have been fairly tested, and the logic of force has proven to be fallacious, and the ignorant and poverty-stricken whites of the south have demonstrated are kept in this south have demonstrated the correctness of the old adage, 'A fool for luck and a poor man for children.' And if we are kept in this same of moverty for ten years more, finding no happiness except in conjugat affection, the next census will give Virginia alone a population of 10,000,000, and astonish Mr. Walker still more."

MR. JULES FERRY, in his recent address on scholastic training, said that he was bidding a last farewell to Latin as a language for use. The study of it, as well as of the Greek, had in the past been an investmable means for the cul-ture of the human mind; but the study of an-tiquity had degenerated into superstition, into grammatical idolatry. Common sense and truth must be returned to. Henceforth Latin and Greek were to be studied, not for the sake of writing in those tongues, but merely to read the great classic productions and glean from them all the wisdom which they contained. THE Helena (Ark.) Daily Yeoman of August 14, published in the chief city of that state, has this handsome declaration of the plan of the campaign at the head of its editorial columns: "The man who thinks that he can lead an opposition against the organized democracy of Phillips county is not only presumptions, but extremely bold. He will require a body guard equal to the whole number of voters in the emocratic ranks, and a Gibraltar in his rear on the day of election."

A CLEVELAND train-boy who selected a country man as a victim and "worked him" for all he was worth was finally rewarded by this cration: "See here, young man; I don't want no books, and I don't want ne fruits, nor no candies, nor no novels, but I will give you fifty cents for two corks, two small corks, to plug up my ears to keep me from being talked to death."

A PHILADELPHIA man has taken out a pat-ent for keeping the yard free from visiting cats. His plan is to fill them with nitre-glycerine by concealing it is their food and the moment they attempt to scale the fonce the explosion that takes place leaves nothing of the cat but "AH! my darling wife," said George, the week after marriage, "if your husband were to die, what would you do?" "I don't know, I am sure, George," said the wife, reflectively. "I never thought of that. I must look in my
